Dr. Latham is not the only author of quality materials on these topics. However, his peers have judged his work to be the very best available. (For example, see About the Book on p. vii in Study Questions for Glenn Latham's The Power of Positive Parenting.)

For this reason we recommend his works.

Also, here is a short story, by Stephen F. Ledoux, that may be of value:

Jamie's Lesson

Have you seen other kids doing mean things? And have you seen others doing nice things?

Well, this is a story about Jamie, and about an early lesson she had on helping others learn to do nice things.

Jamie and her classmates were out on the playground. It was the middle of winter, with a cold sun in the bright blue sky, and a thin glaze of ice on the ground.

However their teacher, Mr. Glenn, saw Jamie off to one side, sniffling. Going over to her, he asked, "Jamie? Are you okay?"

"I don't like Freddy!" she replied rather abruptly. "He's so mean. He said I was clumsy, just because I slipped on the ice..."

"I can understand why you are upset," Mr. Glenn said calmly. "It's hard when other people do things that hurt your feelings."

"And everyone laughed, too," Jamie added, softening a little.

"It's even harder when others give attention to bad things," Mr. Glenn continued pleasantly. "We have talked in class about a better way to handle these things. What is that better way?"

After a pause, Jamie replied, "We said it's better to pay attention when people do good things." But then she added, "But Freddy doesn't do any good things!"

"Well," Mr. Glenn said, "at times like these, it is hard to see good things. But tell me just one thing Freddy has done recently that was good."

"Well," Jamie said, deep in thought. Then, beaming, she said, "Yesterday I saw him go right over to a little kid who fell off the slide, and see if he was okay... And, this morning he helped pick up a box of spilled pencils—and he wasn't even the one who spilled them. That was nice of him."

"Wow!" said Mr. Glenn. "That's great. That's two things!" After a short pause, he added, "Did you tell him you thought that was nice of him?"

"...Oops," said Jamie.

"You can still tell him, if you want to," said Mr. Glenn. "That will still help him do more good things, and become a better person."

"That would be good," Jamie replied. "I will!" And off she went to do so.

You can do that too. Just once today, try to notice something good that someone does, and let them know it was nice. Do that every day, and you will surely make a better world.
